FIFA Women's World Cup 2027

Get ready for an amazing global event! In 2027, the FIFA Women's World Cup will make history as it's hosted by Brazil, marking the very first time this prestigious tournament takes place in South America. Football fans from all over the world will gather to watch 32 national teams compete across Brazil's vibrant stadiums, all hoping to lift the coveted championship trophy.

This decision, announced by FIFA in May 2024, came after Brazil won a vote against a joint bid from European nations Belgium, Germany, and the Netherlands. It's a huge moment for South American football and a testament to Brazil's passion for the sport.

The Women's World Cup has a rich history, with the inaugural tournament held in China back in 1991, which was won by the United States. The United States has been incredibly successful, holding a record four titles, making them the most successful team in the tournament's history. The defending champions are Spain, who claimed their first title in 2023 in Australia and New Zealand. Just like the men's FIFA World Cup and the Olympic Games, this exciting tournament occurs every four years, bringing together the best female footballers on the planet for a thrilling competition.
